A Fan of William Shakespeare

William Shakespeare is often celebrated in England as the most famous playwright that the country ever knew, and one of the most famous playwright across the entire world. During late 15th and early 16th centuries, William Shakespeare wrote approximately 39 plays and over 150 poems.

The Royal Shakespeare Theatre, which was built in 1932, is based in Shakespeare's home town of Stratford-Upon-Avon. Despite Stratford is very small, thousands of tourists visit there every year to see Shakespeare's birthplace. The residents enjoy speaking to visitors from around the world, and they are used to meet people from many different countries taking an interest in their town, but they are often surprised about how many non-English speaking tourists are used to study Shakespeare at school.

Personally, I love going to Stratford, and I try to visit there once every few years because the atmosphere is really great. I saw 3 performances in the theatre, and I am excited to go there again later this year. If I would live closer, I would go there more often!
