

Answers

Below is the corrected paragraph. The correct answers are shown in red. There is a guide in blue to where you can find more information about the grammar points in this paragraph. All information can either be found in the 'How to Use Verb Tenses in Business' book or from lessons in the Fluency Space Academy.

A new study currently is taking / has taken (See 'How to Use Verb Tenses in Business' Lesson 1) place related to the consumption of processed foods in the Western world (See 'a' and 'the' Lesson). In countries such as the UK, the US and Canada, processed foods account for more than 50% of all calories consumed. Scientists have linked (See 'How to Use Verb Tenses in Business' Lesson 3) these foods to many diseases such as cardiovascular disease and even dementia. One of the main problems (See 'Key Patterns to sound more Professional' Lesson) related to processed foods is the mindset of the people who consume them. Food companies are accused of misleading (See 'Key Patterns to sound more Professional' Lesson) consumers about the dangers of these foods. Many corporations are more interested in (See 'Key Patterns to sound more Professional' Lesson) profits than the health of the population. We are used to seeing ads (See 'used to/be used to/get used to' Lesson) on an hourly basis for foods which will potentially have a devastating effect on our health. This seems to be more of a problem in the West than in other parts of the world. If you lived (See 'How to Use Verb Tenses in Business' Lesson 13/14) in the Middle East, for example, you would be exposed to far fewer ads for processed foods. One other worrying factor is that it is much easier these days to get food delivered, which means that processed foods are much more readily available.